

How to use our GUI:

- Once the program is run you will see a blank screen on the left with a list of buttons on the right as well as a load file button above and save file button below.
- To load and view an image, click the load button and select the file you wish to be uploaded.
- Once you can see your image, select the command button you wish to be operated on you image.
- To save an image, select the save file button and your image will be saved to your images folder with the new name based on the command that was selected. For example, the new name will have the prefix "red-" if the red-greyscale operation was selected.
